

The Biosecurity Act 2015

Section 8 – In a State of Emergency, the Biosecurity Act, SUPERSEDES all State Legislations.

Section 109 of the Australian Constitution – ‘...when a law of a State is inconsistent with a law of the Commonwealth, the latter shall prevail, and the former shall, to the extent of the inconsistency, be invalid’.

Section 61 – A Biosecurity Control Order must be issued to test an individual for Covid-19, to require them to wear a mask, or to self-isolate. The individual has the right to appeal a Biosecurity Order imposed on them.

Section 60 – A Biosecurity Control Order can only be issued to an individual by an Authorised Biosecurity Officer if the individual has signs and symptoms.

Section 34 – A Biosecurity Control Order can only be issued to an individual proportionally – where the individual has signs and symptoms that are sufficiently serious to justify imposing the Biosecurity measure.

Section 87 – Biosecurity measures such as self-isolation cannot be applied to a group of people, they can only be applied to an individual with signs and symptoms who has been issued a Human Biosecurity Control Order.

Section 69 – Only an Authorised Biosecurity Officer with the intention of imposing a Human Biosecurity Control Order on an individual can request contact tracing information.

Section 477 – A Human Biosecurity Control Order must be issued to impose requirements that restrict or prevent the movement of an individual.

Section 88 – Only an individual that has been issued a Human Biosecurity Control Order can be required to wear a face mask.

Section 90-91 – An individual with signs and symptoms must be issued a Human Biosecurity Control Order to be required to take personal body samples by a Covid-19 PCR test.

Section 95 – An individual cannot be forced to comply with the Biosecurity measures imposed on them.

These are the laws of the land of Australia!

You can say no!